Honniss of Hartford, who owns property at the shore, appeared before the committee as representing the Crescent Beach Property Owners' committee, as he did before the rail-roads committee on the New London and East Lyme trolley hearings and the hearings before the committee on public health and safety on the fish oil and guano and garbage matters. He told the committee that the Crescent Beach people were very anxious that this charter be granted because of the need for the water and electricity now (Special to The Bulletin.) Hartford, March 23 .- The Crescent Beach Power and Water company and the East Lyme Water company fought out before the incorporations commit-tee this afternoon their contention re-garding the supplying of water to the cottagers at Crescent beach and Sound View, with the result that neither side knows at this moment which has won out, but the chances are that the Crut-tendens of Norwich, who are the Crestendens of Norwich, who are the Crescent Beach company and are applying for a charter as such, will in "end be chartered to supply the two shore resorts named with water and electricity. The incorporators of the new company are Joseph T., Edwin, Henry B. and Tyler Cruttenden, who have had so much to do with developing the delightful resorts which are concerned in this matter.

Provisions for seif-dependence have been in working existence for some time and have provent satisfactory and now what is desired is an incorporated company to operate these supplies.

The New London Gas and Electric company had for ten years a blanket provision in its charter to permit it to supply electricity to Crescent Beach, but has withdrawn from the territory and in no wise opposes the granting of the charter asked for. The Uncas Power company and the Lyme Electric company purposely failed to include this territory in their charters because they didn't consider it practicable for them to try to go there. Nor is there any objection from any quarter to the company electricity to the shore dwellers south of the New York, New Haven & Hartord railroad tracks, which is all the territory it is proposed to include in this charter.
